

This is a detailed topographic map of a region in Baden-Württemberg, Germany, centered around the Bodensee (Lake Constance). The map features a red rectangular boundary enclosing a large area. Purple lines delineate the boundaries of several districts: Aach, Orsingen-Nenzingen, and Stockach. The map shows a dense network of roads, including federal roads (A 81, A 98, A 10) and local roads (L 194, L 223, L 226). Numerous small settlements and villages are labeled, such as Aach, Orsingen, Nenzingen, Stockach, and Bodman-Ludwigshafen. The map also depicts various geographical features, including forests (indicated by black triangle patterns), rivers, and lakes. The terrain is shown with contour lines and shading, indicating elevation changes. The map is oriented with North at the top.
